THE MORNING POST.

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 18, 1834.

[Nos. 63 and 64 of the "GLIMPSES," will be found on our First Page.]

LATEST FROM EUROPE.

Paris papers to the 23d, and Havre to the 25th of December have been received at New York, by the Poland, Capt Anthony.

From the 17th to the 23d of December, inclusive, the sales of Cotton at Havre reached 5519 bales, of which 5073 were American.

The Chambers were opened on the 23d Dec. by a speech from the King. He spoke of the repose and general prosperity of France, its happy relations with all the powers, and expressed a belief that the difficulties between Belgium and Holland, would compromise neither the great interests of Belgium, nor the tranquillity of Europe.

Naples.—Bulwer the novelist was residing for the winter at this resort of the gay and voluptuous—and it has been remarked as a curious anomaly to see the violent opponent of the aristocracy almost always in the company of Lord Hertford, or Lady Drummond.

Greece.—The following items relative to the affairs of Greece are contained in a Vienna paper of the 6th of December:—

"Tranquillity continues to prevail in Greece, and trade is becoming brisk; considerable orders have been received at Trieste from Greek houses. The post-communication with Nauplia, which the Greek Government has started by regular packet-boats, is of great benefit to commerce, and may serve to render Greece the entrepot for the trade between the Mediterranean and the East. The Greek Regency has done wonders during its short administration, and deserves the thanks not of Greece alone, but of all commercial nations. The cultivation of the soil is now the object of its attention, and the happiest results are anticipated." The following is from Trieste, dated 2d inst:—"The news from Greece continues good. Colocotroni's son has been arrested."

Extract of a letter from Smyrna, dated the 16th November:—"The Pacha has ceded to the inhabitants of Crete every thing they demanded. He admits that a monopoly to the extent of that which he enforces in Egypt would in Crete be more injurious than beneficial to him."

Spain.—The Memorial Bordelais, of the 16th Dec. has a letter of the 7th from Madrid, which, after announcing the flight of Don Carlos from Miranda, on the arrival of Gen. Rodil, as has been already stated, adds:—"The flight of the Carlists was so rapid, that they left some of their horses in the hands of Rodil. On the 1st inst. at 4 o'clock in the morning, Miranda was surrounded, and, at break of day, the approach of Gen. Rodil was announced. The gates were thrown open, and the governor received Rodil as a friend, offering to submit to whatever conditions he might dictate. Don Carlos was ignorant of the late successes of the Queen, and his partisans in Spain made him believe that his journey to Madrid would be as easily accomplished as the march of Gen. Rodil to Miranda, which the Infante was forced to leave precipitately, in company with a rector, a Jesuit, a Frenchman, who is his first confidant, and some ex-body-guards."

A letter from Barcelona, of the 6th inst. gives the following:—"Although, as yet, all is tranquil in this principality, a party of insurgents has been formed at Morella, which was at first composed of only 2,000 men, but which now comprises 6,000. They have is at their head."

A Spanish journal, called the Estrella, mentions a battle having taken place before Santarem, but which is not noticed by the ordinary sources of intelligence, which, in general, are more prompt. The Estrella says, that Don Miguel was wounded in fighting against the troops of his brother, which Don Pedro commanded in person. We do not know whether the two brothers actually fought hand to hand, still the fact is sufficiently deplorable in this civilized age."

Imprisonment for Debt.—The authority on example and arguments derived from experience have been already adduced in support of the opinions and principles we have advanced, shewing the inefficiency and absurdity of this system, and the necessity of its modification or abandonment. While other states of the union with an ingenuity to discover, and a boldness to expose the errors of their government, have modified the law as the exigencies of mercantile affairs required, this ancient commonwealth, renowned for the intelligence of her population and the equity of her laws, still indolently and submissively adheres to this vestige of barbarism. The executive organs of New Hampshire, Louisiana and South Carolina, have heretofore at the annual convocations of the Representatives of the people of those states, recommended the abolition of imprisonment for debt. The patriotic state of Kentucky entirely abolished the disgraceful system from her code. Other states have followed in their track. New York and some of the New England States have in some degree neutralized the power of the creditor by a liberal extension of the prison limits. The cause of the unfortunate debtor has not been without powerful advocates. In our own country the name of Richard M. Johnson, of Kentucky, stands eminently conspicuous. Of him it is but a just tribute to say, that we admire his research, ability and philanthropy as the fearless champion and advocate of civil liberty. In England, the energies of such minds as those of her Brougham, Romilly, and Mackintosh have been directed towards a radical reform in the common law jurisprudence of that country. Combining the statesman with the lawyer, theoretical knowledge with the chicanery of practice, despising the trammels of the profession, advocating the great interests of humanity, struggling against ancient prejudices, to make the law a staff for the honest, and a shield for the innocent, their opinions are entitled to the highest consideration. Mr Brougham, in his admirable speech on the state of the law, asks, Why should a man ever be arrested on mesne process at all? On what ground of common sense does our law in this matter rest? Why should it be supposed that a man owing twenty pounds, will leave his house, his wife, his children, his country, his pursuits, and incur voluntarily the punishment awarded for great crimes, by banishing himself for life? Yet the law always proceeds on the supposition that a man will run away the moment he has notice given him of an action for debt. Some might possibly act thus, but their conduct forms the exception, not the rule, and do you legislate wisely—do you legislate like men of sense—do you legislate with common consistency—when you denounce a penalty against all men in order to meet a case not likely to occur once in a thousand times? The alteration of the law would benefit all classes of the community. Its very first consequence would be to make tradesmen less easy in giving credit, by rendering them more cautious. This distinguished jurist unequivocally avows that the person of the debtor should not be taken in execution, unless there is a wilful concealment of property, or there has been criminal or grossly imprudent conduct in contracting the debt; for the two objects should be kept carefully distinct, of what is done to satisfy the creditor, and what is done to punish the debtor. How widely, he says, does the law depart from these obvious and natural principles, by dint of refinement, blunders, and openly avowed injustice. Such was the opinion of a man who had the experience of half a century—whose pride it was to be the advocate of his countrymen at home, and their fellow-laborer elsewhere, in those things which concern the best interests of mankind.

While we unaffectedly deplore the embarrassments which pervade our commercial community, we cannot but rejoice that the subject of imprisonment for debt is recommended to the consideration of the Representatives of the people at a juncture so propitious. It is not for us to examine into the causes of the existing depression. Whether they are adventitious—whether general or particular—whether they proceed from political alarmists, from the murmurings of the disaffected, or the lamentations of the disappointed, it is not relevant to our present purpose to inquire. The number of debts is by no means inconsiderable. They are daily increasing. Every bankruptcy jeopardizes the liberty of the citizen—invests one man with power to abridge the freedom of another, and diminishes the productive force of the community. They who but yesterday soared on the pinions of credit, and glittered in the golden sunbeam, are to-day, by the vicissitudes of trade, by unavoidable calamity, or gambling speculation, brought down, stripped of the gorgeous plumage which supported their flight. It is perhaps but too characteristic of human condition, that we must be made to drink the cup of bitterness to the dregs, before we can be affected by the misfortunes of others. We are engaged in a common cause, and that cause the interests of humanity, the melioration of the condition of our fellow-men. But it is in vain to pourtray the absurdities or barbarities of our debtor system—to cite aggravated cases of individual suffering, or to hold up the beautiful theory of constitutional liberty, when in practice that liberty is held so cheap. The liberty of the humblest citizen tinctures is the highest. Any infraction of it should be watched with the same jealousy and resisted with the same zeal. Frequent and loud have been the appeals for a modification of the law; but no successful attempt has yet been made for relief—no remedy has been prescribed—and the grievance still remains unredressed. It is not by indifference and apathy that relief is to be obtained. Nothing valuable was ever accomplished without determined purpose and concert of action. It has been well said that no men could act with effect, who did not act in concert; that no men could act in concert who did not act with confidence; and that no men could act with confidence who were not bound together by common opinions, common affections, and common interests.

Our friend Greene of the Boston Morning Post, after paying a very handsome compliment to our ability, for which we took off our beaver, and made a low bow, expresses a hope that we may not allow our political prejudices to sway us too much, in our editorial duties. Now, as we know you, brother Greene, to be the best-natured man, and the best-tempered political editor in the world, we will argue, if you please. First, let us propound. If we had been true blue Jackson, so well dyed as not to wear white at the elbows, would you have said a word to us about political prejudices?—Lowell journal.

Certainly not, my dear Sir. It makes all the difference in the world in our caution to you, whether you be for us or against us.

The Gifted Lady is astonishing the Philadelphians—she can tell the fate of everything except that of the U. S. Bank—upon this subject she refuses to discount.

The following is given to the public as a specimen of the means that are resorted to by the friends of the Bank to force a restoration of the deposits. Similar letters, we are informed, are sent constantly by the mails, not only to the President, but to those of his confidential friends who are known to accord with him in the steps which have been taken to prevent a recharter of the Bank:—Washington Globe.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9, 1834.

Andrew Jackson, President of the U. States, &c. Sir: This is to inform you that I, one of a number of young men of this city who have conspired your death, unknown to my colleagues, write this to warn you of this plot—not from any intention to benefit you thereby, but solely for the good of my country—a step, which influenced as we are by sentiments of pure patriotism, myself and associates have deemed advisable for the welfare of our much abused country. I recommend you to revoke, as soon as practicable, all the opinions, declarations, and proclamations which have emanated from you relative to the rechartering of, and removing the government deposits from, the United States Bank. The alternative will most assuredly be your certain death. ***

Three of our number, elected by chance, will proceed, in the course of the present month, to the Capital, there to put in execution the design entrusted to their hands. Even should one attempt fail, do not think to escape, for we are firmly resolved to free our country from the hands of a despot. To conclude—"Beware the Ides of March."

POLICE COURT.

[Saturday.]

Dealers in Old Junk.—Robert Hodge, George Ballard, and Le Roy Hannaford—severe looking colts, from 14 to 16 years of age—were arraigned for breaking into the store of the Messrs Benson, on Battery wharf, on the night of the 7th inst. and stealing about 40lbs. of old copper, valued at $6 00. Two of the boys were observed reconnoitering about the store, on the afternoon previous to the robbery, and it was ascertained the next day that they marked a window in the second story, which had no fastening inside, and by which they entered in the night. A watchman overheard them bargaining for the sale of the copper with a junk dealer, by the name of Ryan, in Ann street, and saw a part of it in the scales. The watchman, after questioning the boys, was satisfied by their confused and contradictory statements, that they had stolen the copper, took them to the watch house, and the next morning found out where it came from. The boys confessed the fact to the officers. The Court asked Ryan "if he had not sense enough to know, that the boys could not have come by so large a quantity of copper honestly?" and added, that "it would not be surprising if the Grand Jury should find a bill against him for receiving stolen goods." The temptation held out by the dealers in old iron is very dangerous to boys, and they should be cautiously watched.—The boys were committed for trial at the Municipal Court.

Mary Jane Davis pleaded not guilty to a long list of et ceteras, but was proved guilty of night-walking. Two things were admitted in her favor, and urged by her counsel, that raised her to a pinnacle of purity, above her fellow-prisoners: she never drank of the forbidden fountain, or roystered in the oyster shops of Ann street. Fined $5 00 and costs.

Harriet Fisher, (alias Brick-top) according to the statement of the Constable of the watch, had "worn a track in the pavement of Ann street, by her midnight marching, and as she had done her share in making work for the paviors, she ought to be relieved from further duty." She was accordingly billeted on the house of correction for two months.

[Monday.]

A liquid philanthropist rewarded, as all philanthropists are, who volunteer to do good to a benighted generation.—John Leonard, whose "heart was soft with whiskey," and his pockets full of money, was extremely desirous of imparting the blessing of a mellow heart to every body else, and, on Sunday evening, shocked the moral sense of a number of pious persons, on their way to lecture, by offering to give them a taste of the cratur.—The invitation was given in terms more hearty than elegant, and with such annoying importunity, as to "constrain" the precieux, to whom they were addressed, to call a Constable. The attack of the constable complaint is always accompanied by a cold sweat and disturbed slumbers, the patient frequently dreaming that the court house, where Dr Commonwealth stands ready to bleed him, as soon as Dr Law decides that his case requires it. The patient is then permitted to depart, upon paying the expenses of the operation, and giving bonds not to require another prescription for one month. In desperate cases the patients are removed to South Boston, where they administer a decoction of wormwood to them, and exercise them three times a day, in lock-step.

Paddy Dickson's Benefit.—Dickson, the best Irish comedian at present among us, has made arrangements for entertaining his friends with a most sportive pastime this evening, at the Warren. To show himself off to the best advantage, he will bring out "Paddy's Trip to Boston," written expressly for this occasion. In the course of the evening, he will give an Irish version of Brutus' Oration on Caesar's Death, and sing four of his best comic songs. Mrs Laforest will also sing the Echo song, which was rapturously received at Mr Pearce's excellent concert on Saturday evening. He will undoubtedly have a crowd.

Miss Fanny Kemble.—The bills announce, with what truth, we wot not off, that the Kembles appear to-night for the last time, for Miss K's benefit. The pieces are the "Gamester," and "Katharine and Petruchio."

Turn-Out at Lowell.—We learn that extraordinary excitement was occasioned at Lowell, last week, by an announcement that the wages paid in some of the departments would be reduced 15 per cent on the 1st of March. The reduction principally affected the female operatives, and they held several meetings or caucuses, at which a young woman presided, who took an active part in persuading her associates to give notice that they should quit the mills, and to induce them to "make a run" on the Lowell Bank and Savings Bank, which they did.

On Friday morning, the young woman referred to was dismissed, by the Agent, from her place in the mill where she worked, and on leaving the office, after receiving "a bill of her time," as the phrase is, waved her calash in the air, as a signal to others, who were watching from the windows, when they immediately "struck," assembled around her, in despite of the overseers.—Trans.

About $270 only were received last night in furtherance of the charity of the "Seamen's Aid Society." This sum is most mortifyingly small. * * * We know that one gentleman, of most liberal feelings, whose heart is as generous as light, and expansive as the noon-day sun, was compelled to leave the church, because his room was wanted to make place for a seventh female in a pew, where the contribution box was afterwards presented, and not a cent received.—Transcript.

We understand the centre school house in Congress street came near being burnt on Thursday night by ignited ashes in a barrel, which was fortunately discovered by the teachers of the evening school.—Portland Courier.

Value of Slaves.—At a recent sale of the late Col. McGar, in Columbia county, Ga. there were sold sixty-nine negroes, bringing $31,789—averaging $460 each.

MASSACHUSETTS LEGISLATURE.

Monday, Feb. 17.—In the Senate—Petition of Selectmen of Charlestown, that Rail Roads may support certain Bridges—of John S. Craig and others, for investigation into Masonry—of President, &c. of Atlas Bank, for extension of time to pay their capital stock. Committee on Roads and Bridges instructed to inquire into the expediency of providing by law, that persons using broad rimmed wheels, shall be entitled to an abatement of highway taxes. Passed to be engrossed—bill to amend the act incorporating the City Mutual Fire Insurance Company—authorizing the Mercantile Insurance Company to reduce their capital—in addition to an act ceding to the United States the jurisdiction of the Island of Nix's Mate—to change name of Merimac river bridge—to establish Police Court in New Bedford—to increase number of Engine men in Salem.

In the House—Petition of J. Smith and 19 others of Gill—of G. Arthur and 39 others of Tisbury, on License Laws. Committee ordered to inquire into the expediency of prescribing by law a uniform mode of counting votes and determining elections by ballot;—Secretary was ordered to lay before the House an account of the items of expenditure in and around the State House for year 1833. Passed to 3d reading—bill to incorporate Bloomsdale Iron Co.—to incorporate Berkshire Man. Labor School, on petition of L. Crowell—to incorporate Douglas Axe Manufactory—to incorporate the Hoosac Mass. Co.—to incorporate the Taunton Market Co. Passed to be engrossed—bill to incorporate Boston Society of Artists—establishing ratio of tolls on 8th Mass. Turnpike. Adj.

For the Boston Morning Post.

The Boston Courier, a few weeks or months ago, appeared to be arranged in opposition to the U. S. Bank, as would naturally be the case with any one, who should spontaneously follow the suggestions and dictates of good sense and disinterested patriotism. What weighty reasons were presented to that journal, to induce it to face to the right-about, and perhaps a "delegation" from the aristocracy of Boston waited upon the editor, as that from New York has lately done upon the President, and that the former was more susceptible of such influence than the latter.

However this may be, the Courier is well known to be, or to have been, the official organ here of the Great Monied Coalition, and therefore its sentiments may be safely assumed to be that of the coalition, and of Messrs Clay, Webster, &c. This powerful coalition, as is almost superfluous to mention, consists of a great majority of the rich manufacturers, the rich stockholders in the United States Bank, the rich merchants, the rich planters, and the rich gentlemen at large, throughout the country. One of their great objects and designs is let out in the Courier of Monday. "Congress would do well," says that paper, "for this generation, and better for the next, if it should charter a bank of one hundred millions capital, and for a hundred years." * * * "The Union cannot be preserved ten years without one!"

We suspect that the Courier is a little too fast, a little in advance of the times, and that he will be called to an account for this premature disclosure. Only think of it, my countrymen. The present bank, as it is, is almost mostable to overturn the government and the constitutional power of the country; but this is a mere pigmy, a Tom Thumb to a giant, compared to that which is proposed. King Bank is to become Emperor—an elective and a limited monarchy is to become a permanent dynasty, a hereditary despotism. An Imperial Bank, for "one hundred years," and with a "hundred millions capital," will easily put down that worthless, mischievous, presumptuous class, the common people, and the result will be, millions of "white slaves," and, in future, peaceable, quiet, passive obedience and non-resistance to the imperial sway.

For the Boston Morning Post.

"ALL THE DECENCY."

The whole world knows, or ought to know, that "the great National Republican party of the Universe," embraces all the talents, respectability and decency of the country. If there are any silly enough to doubt this fact, their doubts will at once be removed by passing through Washington street, and casting their eye at the window of Mr Alfred Willard, opposite the Old South. We are thus particular in giving this gentleman's name and place of business in full, because it really seems to us he is entitled to a Pension, or some other distinguished mark of favor from the members of "the National Republican County and Ward Committee."

For the past week the windows of Mr Willard's store have been filled with political caricatures and prints, one or two of the former of which, would not, for their gross indecency, be tolerated in any brothel in the country.

One in particular struck us as being more obscene than anything of the kind that ever fell under our observation. It represents the person of the President of the United States naked, placed upon a table, and Mr Clay and some other choice spirits surrounding him with their knives, about to dissect him. We believe we have described this caricature accurately, but really we could not stop to examine it very minutely, for we found our blood getting a little warm, and we therefore passed on, leaving the crowd to view the picture "with a little anetite they may." H.

Ladies of fashion starve their happiness to feed their vanity, and their love to feed their pride.

A Hard Run.—Yesterday, between two and three o'clock, a most daring robbery was committed in Charles street. A respectable farmer, while in the act of unfolding a roll of bank notes, had them suddenly snatched from his hand, by a young man of genteel appearance, and notwithstanding he was instantly pursued by a number of persons, and a general cry of "stop thief" was raised, the fellow actually made his escape by superior swiftness, and adroit turnings into lanes and alleys—proving himself no less light of foot than light of hand.—Balt. Gaz.

Proper Resentment.—"Why are you running about in the snow, Thomas, without your shoes and stockings?" inquired a kind father of his son. "Because, sir," answered the urchin, "the shoemaker hasn't mended my shoes according to his promise, and I want to show proper resentment."—Plattsburg Repub.

The North River is open as high up as Peekskill.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY.—The Annual Meeting of the WASHINGTON SOCIETY, for the choice of officers for the ensuing year, and the transaction of such other business as may be necessary, will be held at the Executive Coffee House, on SATURDAY EVENING next, 22d inst., at 7 o'clock. CHARLES G. GREENE, President.

WASHINGTON LIGHT INFANTRY.—The members of the Washington Light Infantry are hereby notified that the Tickets for the ball on the 21st inst. are ready for delivery, and can be obtained at William Orce's, No. 30 Broadway street, and Messrs J. & W. W. Russell's 28 and 42 Congress street. Per order—ALBERT F. DOW, Secretary. Feb 18 31s

POSTSCRIPT.

The Southern Mail arrived last evening, at a quarter before 11, but brought no news.

CONGRESS.

In the Senate, on Friday, nothing of general interest transpired. The Vice President communicated a letter from the War Department, transmitting statements of contracts made by that Department in the year 1833. Also, a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting weekly statements of the State Banks, in which the public deposits are now made; which, on motion of Mr Webster, was ordered to be printed. Several memorials were presented in favor and in opposition to the removal of the Deposites. Mr Tipton, from the Select Committee, to whom was referred the propriety of admitting Michigan and Arkansas into the Union, reported a bill forming a Territorial Government for Wisconsin; which was read twice and committed.—The Senate then adjourned over to Monday.

In the House, Mr Wise, of Virginia, obtained the floor for the purpose of making some remarks respecting the friendly relations that existed between himself and the late Mr Bouldin, who, it will be remembered, died while about to reply to some remarks made by Mr Wise on a former occasion, respecting Mr Randolph.

Mr Conner, from the committee on the Post Office and Post Roads, made a report upon the resolution referred to that committee, relating to the failure of the mails between the cities of Washington and Boston. Laid on the table and ordered to be printed, together with the accompanying communication of the Post Master General.

A resolution was laid on the table, instructing the committee on Indian Affairs to inquire if the treaty with the Creeks conflicts with the rights of the State of Alabama, and if it does, to report what laws it may be expedient to pass to prevent such conflict.

The bill making appropriations for fortifications, for 1834, was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading.

Adjourned to Saturday.
